Now when she's alone, she can think calm and clearly. "What should I do?" - she mumbled.

There was a sleeping ~~man~~ stranger in her house, right in her bed. Surely, watching his seventh dream.

"Oh, God" - at that moment she thought God was the only one who could help.

She drove her car to the nearest police station and told everything that happened. "I went to the mall and when I came home there was a strange man sleeping in my bed."

She and the policeman returned to her house and opened the door.

"Oh, hello! I'm really sorry, but I had dropped sleeping in your house. I'm from delivery" - a tall man stood at the door and awkwardly looked at ~~the~~ apartment owner.

"But how did you break into my house?" she screamed.

"Ma'am, the door was open."

Policeman sighed and drove back to his work.

Delivery man gave the goods to the lady and left.

Now she stands at her door and thinks that she's clearly silly. "What even ~~was~~ that was?"

This topic will about if people use ~~of~~ their free time healthily.

I think that young people use their time on right way.

First of all, they spent free time to their hobbies. All teenagers have different hobbies and interests. For example, they can do sport, go to variety of extra lessons, ~~and~~ to volunteers or take up new type of hobbie.

Secondly, I noticed that the majority of young people carry notice books. It mean that they have busy routine. We can't say that they spend their time for free.

Thirdly, all people have aims and steps to reach them. For example, I have exams and at the moment, I prepare to them. I consider that I spend my spare time healthily.

Fourthly, the majority of young people take part in volunteer team. They share their free time with retirees and illnesses.

In conclusion, I just want to say that our teenagers spend their time perfectly.
